NOISE TRADE COMPANY (ITALY)

Minimal, atmospheric, deep, obscure, murky and wistfully poetic: here's the new Noise Trade Company, the project led by the electronic/industrial/post-punk alchemist Gianluca Becuzzi and Elena De Angeli.

Unfaithful Believers is the album that in 2014 will delight fans by a repertoire full of alienating, pale sound, supported mainly by skeletal scans of drum machines, expanded dark-ambient noises, reverberating Badalamenti/Tarantino-like arpeggios performed by Fabrizio Biscontri and by the significant vocal expressions sung by the two protagonists.

Evocative harmonies, lyrics of great effect, aesthetic and brave experimentalism add charm to the structures of the ten songs included in the tracklist, with a strong, movie-like atmosphere. Stories of forbidden love and death, passion consummated in secret, Beauty and Evil merge in the echo of a 'place of the mind' which could be Twin Peaks.

After a year from the previous "Reformation" the platform offers a new full-length which, if listened with complete participation, will offer nocturnal glimpses, decadent images, darkness and feelings of perdition.
